To: Mr. Tim Cook, CEO, Apple Inc.
Subject: Executive Review Request for iOS App "Mana Telugu"
Developer ID: [Your Father's Developer ID]
App ID/SKU: [Your App's SKU or Bundle ID]

Dear Mr. Cook,

As the father of a 12-year-old UK student developer, Lalit Dusanapudi, I am writing to respectfully request an Executive Review of his iOS app "Mana Telugu," which was recently rejected under Guideline 4.3(a) – Design – Spam and placed on hold pending clarification under Guideline 2.1 / 1.3.

Lalit is the sole creator, designer, and developer of Mana Telugu. He built it to help children of the Telugu diaspora—especially those in English-speaking countries—learn their heritage language so they can communicate with family members, such as grandparents in India who may speak only Telugu.

Why Mana Telugu is Unique and Not Spam:

- Original Creator: Lalit is the sole developer. The app is an original, from-scratch project built by a 12-year-old for children like himself, not a repackaged template or resale binary.
- Modern Design: The app is built on the latest platform features, including the iOS 26 Liquid Glass design language, offering a superior and modern UI/UX compared to outdated competitors.
- Unique Features: It provides gamified learning (XP, streaks, and games) and a structured curriculum, demonstrating distinct functionality and educational value.

The 4.3(a) rejection states that his app is similar to apps from a terminated developer account. We are concerned that an automated similarity or policy check may have incorrectly associated his unique binary or concept with spam.

Full Compliance with Kids Category Guidelines:

We fully respect Apple's policies to keep the App Store high-quality and safe. We confirm the following, which has also been provided in the Resolution Center:

- The app includes no third-party analytics.
- The app includes no advertising.
- The app does not collect, share, or store user or device data beyond what iOS itself handles.

- The app provides a dedicated Parent Mode to give guardians control and transparency.

Lalit deeply admires Apple and was inspired by how the company re-imagined existing categories. His dream is to do something similar for Telugu learning for kids worldwide. For a 12-year-old, having his independently built app fairly reviewed on its own merits would be an incredible validation and motivation to keep building on Apple's platforms.

With great respect for your time, I kindly ask that this case be forwarded to the appropriate Executive Relations or App Review leadership so that Mana Telugu can be reviewed as an original educational app by a young developer, rather than as a presumed clone linked to a terminated account. We are happy to provide any additional technical details, code-level explanations, or design documentation needed.

Thank you very much for considering this request and for supporting young developers.

Yours sincerely,

[Your Full Name]
Father of Lalit Dusanapudi (12-year-old creator of "Mana Telugu")
United Kingdom
Kali.pavan@gmail.com
+44 75177996507